What is Telstra Velocity™

Telstra Velocity is Telstra's new Fibre to the Home network which allows you to access cutting edge telecommunication and entertainment services.

Why it is so good

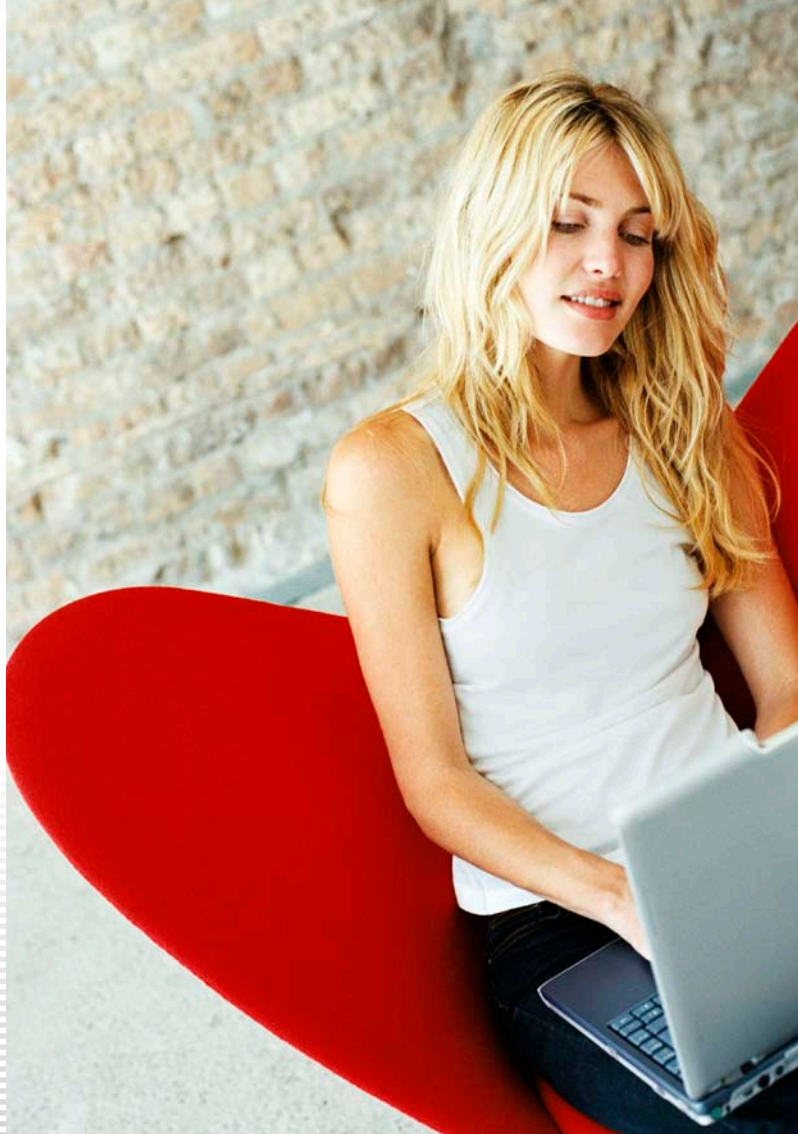

Hi-speed internet to the home will enable a new world of entertainment and information at your fingertips. You'll be able to easily take advantage of services such as:

- Bigpond® Velocity - High Speed Broadband
- Interactive TV
- Interactive Multimedia (ie online video games)
- Video telephone (modest quality)
- Videos-on-demand
- Home shopping
- Video telephone (modest quality)
- FOXTEL™ from Telstra*
- Telstra Velocity™ TV- Digital free to air TV
- Allows access to future advancements in technology for products and services with little or no disruption to existing services, home wiring or your home.

Why do I need smart wiring?

Every home built today should have smart wiring installed. The amount of hardwired phones and faxes in the home is dropping dramatically. Even more dramatic, is the increase of network devices being released in the market and appearing in the home. A home once had one desktop PC. Now it is common for a home to have multiple PC's and or laptops, network enabled gaming consoles, internet enabled phones (VOIP), network printers and more. Media streaming devices, and media centre PC's are designed to plug into your TV/Theatre and give you access to your digitally stored movies, music and photos. To utilise these types of products, you require a high speed data network integrated with high grade Television cabling to industry recognised standards. Conventional phone cabling or wireless networks can not effectively deal with the amount of high speed applications that are now required in the home.

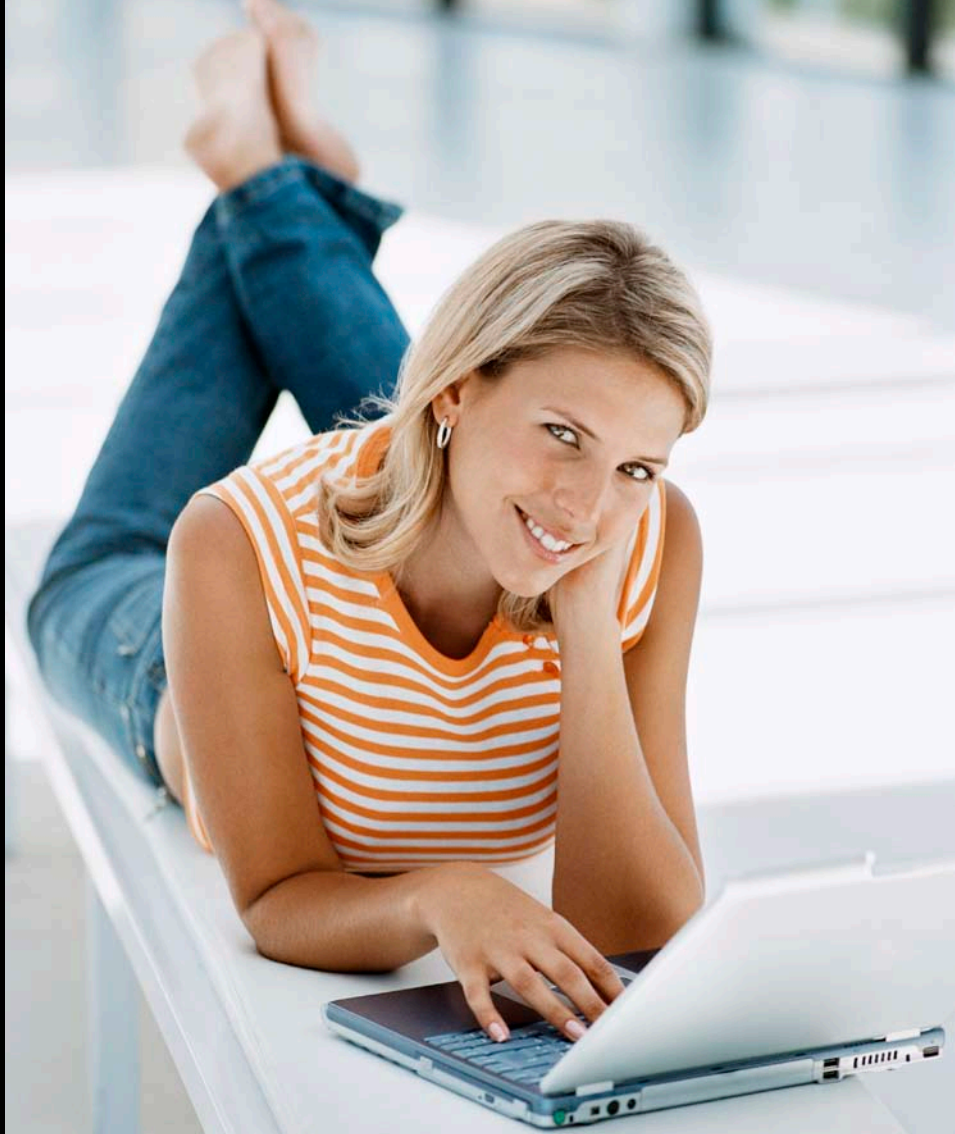

The difference is Intelligent Home design

At Intelligent Home we take the time to ask the questions that count. Your lifestyle, technical requirements, future requirements, the services available in your area are all important to design. Our promise is to deliver an end product that will be relevant for you now and in the future.
